DROWNING ACCIDENT AT CHANNEL

Arthur Newburn of Oak Park, Drowns While in Bathing on Monday

SAD ENDING OF VACATION

A happy vacation was brought to a sudden tragic end on Monday of this week when Arthur Newburn of Oak Park, a visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer at Channel met death in the waters of the lake.

Mr. Newburn an unmarried man about forty-three years of age had only recently returned from Italy where he served as a Red Cross ambulance driver for many months. He had been making his home with his sister at Oak Park and on Saturday last he and his neice motored out for a short stay at the Sawyer home.

Monday morning was spent in playing croquet with some other guests until about eleven o'clock when Mr. Newburn and his neice decided to take a little swim before dinner. They rowed out beyond the weeds and the neice stepped out in shallow water, he rowed on into deeper water then dived in two or three times.

Suddenly those on shore heard frantic screams and rushing to the waters edge they saw him throw up his hands and sink beneath the surface. The neice being unable to swim ran to the shore screaming for help and jumped into a boat, Miss Heather heard the commotion from the kitchen and running out leaped into the boat and rowed out. In the meantime those on shore shouted at the top of their voices to a man, fishing not far from the scene of the tragedy. He had been sitting with his back to the bathers and did not notice that anything had happened. Looking around he saw the empty boat and evidently thinking that they were calling to him to rescue it he calmly rowed over to it, lifted the anchor and let it go, and by so doing lost the location.

It was at least four hours after the tragedy before the search for the body began, on account of difficulty in procuring grappling hooks. The search continued until eleven thirty Tuesday forenoon when the body was located with the hooks and was brought to the surface by a young man who dived for it.

The body was brought to the Strang undertaking rooms and an inquest was held Tuesday evening, the coroners jury returning a verdict of accidental drowning. An undertaker from Oak Park arrived with an auto hearse Tuesday afternoon and took the body back to the home Wednesday morning.

Riders of The Purple Sage

One of the strangest chapters in American history is vividly presented in the great photoplay, "Riders of the Purple Sage," in which William Farnum will appear at Hunt's Majestic theatre on Saturday, August 23.

Based on the Zane Grey novel of the same name, "Riders of the Purple Sage" relates a story whose setting is Utah in the early days of the Mormon settlement, and gives an illuminating insight into the practices of some of the former leaders of that sect.

The play starts with the abduction of a girl by a powerful dignitary of the Mormon cult, and tells a thrilling story of a year's long hunt by her brother for the men who wronged her. The extent of the power of the elders of the church over their followers is startlingly revealed, and to students of American history the picture will prove an amazing narrative of a factor in the great West's growth that is not generally known.

Wise John.

John was able to persuade Ruth to do most things he desired. One day the children, with their little cousin, Edward, decided to draw pictures. Edward and John each found a pencil, but Ruth was still without one until her mother came to her aid with a big new pencil. John, whose pencil was a blue stub, looked longingly at the new one and then, in a coaxing voice, said: "Ruthie, don't you want this nice pretty blue one? It just matches your eyes." Needless to say, John secured the long pencil.

Review Board Decides to Enforce New State Law

Lake county tax payers will pay their 1919 taxes on an assessed valuation of one-half of the full valuation of their property instead of on one-third assessed valuation as they have done since 1909.

This was decided definitely Friday Emil Ficke, chairman of the Lake county board of review and the other members, Ney Lamb, H. C. Coulson, and R. S. Barnum, went to Chicago to attend a conference of the boards of Lake, Cook, DuPage, Will, McHenry and a score of state and county tax experts for the purpose of determining whether the boards, which were appointed before July 1, of this year, when the new one-half assessed valuation law becomes effective, were within the legal right to do so, considering they were appointed before the law went into effect.

Such men as Cook County Clerk Robert M. Schweitzer, Robert Redfield, Colin C. H. Fyffe, C. C. Craig, former associate justice of the Illinois Supreme Court, and many others passed opinions that the boards are within their rights to extend the taxes on the new basis.

It was declared also that practically every municipality is in need of additional revenue this year and that even the state university might be embarrassed unless the taxing bodies are permitted to put into effect an assessed valuation of one-half the full valuation instead of one-third. This does not mean, however, that the taxes will be much higher, for the reason that the rate has been reduced from 75 per cent to 50 per cent.

Formerly on a $3,000 valuation, the assessed valuation was $1,000 and the tax rate at 75 cents per one hundred dollar valuation the net taxes were $7.50. Under the new way the assessed valuation on $3,000 is $1,500 but with the 50 cent rate the next tax is just the same.

The Impending Storm for Profiteers

Profiteering may yet be the undoing of the country. No nation ever is greater than the government it maintains, and if the government does not conserve the interests of the people the people in time lose confidence in that form of government.

The greatest crime in the history of our country is that of profiteering, wholesale and deliberate robbery of a helpless public. Prices have been artificially forced to such a high altitude that it is becoming more and more difficult for a poor person to even sustain life. The law of supply and demand no longer prevails. It has been substituted by one of gouge and grab. Already many people, men and women of sound and patriotic principles are predicting revolution as the only means of checking this wholesale and lawless thievery.

Our government should take warning while there is yet time. Protection of profiteering should cease at once and prosecution should be swift and relentless. We can not afford to have our great country wrecked upon the rock of greed and avarice. And yet today, because of the supine inactivity of our public officials, we are heading straight toward destruction. Public endurance is at the breaking point. Revolution is hovering dangerously near. The government should heed the impending storm, before it is too late to prepare to meet it.

Kill Cattle and Then Steal Carcasses

The police and Sheriff Elmer Green were called to the Daly pasture northwest of Waukegan where it was reported two heads of cattle had been killed and their carcasses stolen.

The names of the owners of the cattle were not known to the police as many persons have cattle in the pasture.

The discovery was made when T. J. Stahl went to the pasture to look after a large cow which they were unable to find. The hired man notified the Daly heirs about the missing cattle with the result that it was discovered two cattle had been killed and dressed in the pasture, the offal buried and the meat hauled away.

FORD AUTO TURNS TURTLE

William Sheehan Meets With Painful Injuries When Car Goes in Ditch

OTHERS ESCAPE INJURY

A pleasant auto ride terminated into a painful visit to the doctor's office, when a Ford touring car, owned and driven by William Sheehan, turned over into the ditch just east of the William Smart farm Tuesday evening.

In the machine was a party of four consisting of William Sheehan and Bob McCann and the Misses Mary and Marguerite Sheehan, who were on their way to a dance at Channel. The lights had been giving considerable trouble all the evening, when suddenly just as the car was nearing a bridge they flickered and went out. The driver although unable to discern the road proceeded, at what he termed a moderate rate of speed, but somehow he misjudged the surroundings and drove into the ditch. The car toppled for a moment then turned over. The driver was thrown head first into the windshield in such a way that his scalp was cut and gashed until it appeared to be almost torn off. The rest of the party escaped with a bad fright and a few minor bruises.

Howard Smith happened along at the time and took the injured boy to the office of Dr. Warriner, where two physicians worked over him for about two hours. At present he seems to be getting along very nicely.

Both Proposals in Special Election Carried

Tuesday was election day in Antioch, and while the question put before the public for decision on that day, were of sufficient importance to arouse the interest of every voter in the village, yet they failed to do so. Practically no interest was taken in the matter and only eighty-six men and thirty-two women took the trouble to turn out to vote. Both propositions carried.

On the question of "Shall bonds or obligations for the purpose of providing funds and moneys for the rebuilding and repair of the village water tower and tank, the sinking and construction of a well, the purchase and installation of a pump, twenty-five in number, each in the sum of two hundred dollars, in the total sum of five thousand dollars, be issued by the board of trustees of the village of Antioch," fifty-one men voted in its favor and thirty-five against it. Seventeen women favored the proposition and fifteen did not.

On the second question "Shall the tax levy upon the aggregate assessed valuation of property within the village of Antioch be increased from one and two tenths per cent to two per cent," fifty-three men and eighteen women voted in its favor, while thirty men and twelve women voted against it.

THE ANNUAL LAKE CO. FAIR.

New Management Promise Bigger and Better Fair This Year

ASK FOR YOUR SUPPORT

The Lake County Fair has been held continuously for 65 years, but at present the financial conditions of the association are such that unless the people of Lake county are sufficiently interested to give the Fair their support by helping to bring out a big attendance there is a prospect that our 1919 fair will ring down the final curtain and in the future we would have only live-stock shows in the county instead of the modern county fair. The present situation is due to a combination of circumstances and has not been brought about by any particular thing.

The present officers and directors are trying to represent every section of Lake county, playing no favorites, but working as a unit to make the Lake County Fair the very best of its kind in the Chicago district.

A brief resume of the work done by present board and the plans for our 1919 fair might be of interest:

Every bill against the fair association has been paid. Some of these bills were two years old.

The constitution and rules have been changed so as to place our fair on the same basis with other modern County fairs.

The premium list has been completely revised, with new features added and antiquated policies discarded.

The premium list has been published and distributed without cost to the association. This was made possible by farmers and other business men of Lake county who carried advertising.

As a special attraction the premiums offered have been increased by the addition of $1300 given for specials. These specials have been offered for exhibits in every department so as to give exhibitors in all departments.

Some of these specials include:

$5.00 to $25.00 cash for certain exhibits.

$25.00 canner for exhibit of canned vegetables by farm women.

$25.00 cash for the best exhibit of plain and fancy sewing.

$10.00 for the highest scoring baby boy under 2 years and the same for a baby girl.

$25.00 for the best exhibit of vegetables.

$15.00 for the best poultry display, of nine birds.

Cash and valuable cups will be offered in all the different livestock departments, or classes.

A $25.00 all wool flag will be given to the township that has the largest number of automobiles in a parade at the grounds Saturday, Sept. 6, at 1:00 o'clock. Libertyville township does not compete. See the secretary for details

These are only a few of the valuable premiums worth competing for. A complete list will be found in the premium book which may be secured by writing the secretary.

Boys and Girls Stock Judging Contest. This is a new feature that has been added this year. These contests will be held at 10 a. m. Sept. 4th and 5th, on the grounds. Only boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 15 can compete. Dairy cattle and hogs will be judged. Complete instructions will be given before the contest begins. The premiums will be pure bred calves and pigs as well as free trips to the National Dairy Show and the International Livestock show.

Larry Brown will give exhibition flying features daily so that everyone may see an aeroplane at close range, and many of the apparently impossible and amazing things they are capable of.

The racing programs will be up to standard or better than usual.

A dancing platform will be erected on the grounds so that who ever desires may have an opportunity to "shake their festive toe" at a reasonable price and under proper supervision.

The association is trying to get a war souvenir display, showing captured equipment as well as equipment used by our own men.

The recent rains have been of wonderful value so that our corn and other fall crops should be more than up to standard for this time of the year. Corn prospects could not be much better.

Many entries have already been made in the livestock departments so we can safely predict displays here of over a half million dollars. In the poultry department plans have been changed to appeal more to the local breeders, many of whom have already signified their willingness to help make the poultry show a feature.

The judges used will be experts in their lines, and every exhibitor will be given fair treatment and extended every possible courtesy by the management.

The management is trying to make this a county fair for the people of Lake county who desire clean entertainment as well as instruction. But a successful fair can not be built up and maintained only through efficient management combined with the loyal support of local people from all parts of the county. Come to the fair and judge for yourself whether our county fair can be made worth while. It's up to you.

Plans Completed for Home-Coming Celebration

Everything is in readiness for the big home coming celebration on Thursday, Aug. 28. A good program beginning at two o'clock will be given on the band stand on Main street. It will be as follows:

Selection by the Antioch band. Star Spangled Banner by the school children. Reading by Mrs. A. J. Felter. Welcome Home song by Mrs. Krelcker. How you going to keep 'em down on the farm after they've seen Paree, by Helen and Irene Ketteihut, Mabel Stickles and Martha Hillebrand. Red Cross Girlie of Mine by school girls. Salvation Army Lassie of Mine by the Boy Scouts. Address by Major Smith. Selection by the Antioch band.

Music will be furnished by the Antioch band during the remainder of the afternoon and the lunch hour.

Supper will be served, free to everyone, on Morley's lawn from 4:30 o'clock on. All soldiers and Sailors are especially invited to come and bring their mothers, wives and sweethearts.

A free dance will be given in the opera house beginning at 8:30 o'clock with music by the Antioch jazz orchestra.

This day has been set aside to welcome home the boys from Antioch township and it is especially requested that every business place and every residence should be decorated with flags or bunting for the occasion.

Primaries Will be Held Sept. 10, in This County

Every republican voter in this senatorial district should bear in mind that on Wednesday, Sept. 10th, primaries will be held in every voting precinct, to nominate delegates to the state constitutional convention and that the election will take place in November of this year.

The time has expired to file primary petitions and Dr. Frank S. Whitman and Attorney Elam L. Clark of Waukegan, are the only republicans to be voted on for Sept. 10, and will both be nominated without the slightest opposition, but as republicans are now planning for the 1920 campaign they should vote at the primaries on Sept. 10. In order to show that the party is united and will go out to win in the approaching presidential campaign of 1920.

The socialists have two candidates at the primaries and the democrats one, in the person of Atty. J. E. Barber of Marengo, so the three parties will make nominations and the real contest will come later at the November election.

"SHE CAN DO NO WRONG"

Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Hart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night Andrew Roon and his servant, guests at the tavern, are shot near Green Fancy. Barnes comes under suspicion and stays to help clear up the double murder. He gets into the Green Fancy grounds; meets the mysterious girl, who gives him the cut direct, and is politely ejected by O'Dowd, an interesting adventurer. Enter at the tavern another man of mystery, Sprouse, "book agent." Barnes visits Green Fancy with the sheriff and stays to dinner. Enter still another mysterious personage, "Loeb," secretary to Curtis, owner of Green Fancy, who does not appear because of illness. Barnes again meets "Miss Cameron," the mysterious girl, who is a ravishing beauty in evening dress. She is a prisoner and secretly appeals to him for help. Sprouse reveals himself as a secret service man.

"The deuce you say!" cried Barnes.

"We will get right down to tacks," said Sprouse. "My government—which isn't yours, by the way—sent me up here five weeks ago on a certain undertaking. I am supposed to find out what is hatching up at Green Fancy. Having satisfied myself that you are not connected with the gang up there I cheerfully place myself in your hands, Mr. Barnes. You were at Green Fancy last night. So was I. You had an advantage over me, however, for you were on the inside and I was not."

"Confound your impudence! I—"

"One of my purposes in revealing myself to you, Mr. Barnes, is to warn you to steer clear of that crowd. You may find yourself in exceedingly hot water later on if you don't. Another purpose, and the real one, is to secure, if possible, your co-operation in hunting the game up there. You can help me, and in helping me you may be instrumental in righting one of the gravest wrongs the world has ever known."

"Will you be good enough, Mr. Sprouse, to tell me just what you are trying to get at? I know nothing whatever against Mr. Curtis and his friends. You assume a great deal—"

"Excuse me, Mr. Barnes. I'll admit that you don't know anything against them, but you suspect a whole lot. To begin with, you suspect that two men were shot to death because they were in wrong with someone at Green Fancy. Now I could tell you who these two men really were and why they were shot. But I sha'n't do anything of the sort—at least not at present."

Barnes was impressed. "Perhaps you will condescend to tell me who you are, Mr. Sprouse. I am very much in the dark."

"I am a special agent—but not a spy, sir—of a government that is friendly to yours. I am known in Washington. My credentials are not to be questioned. At present it would be unwise for me to reveal the name of my government. I dare say if I can afford to trust you, Mr. Barnes, you can afford to trust me. There is too much at stake for me to take the slightest chance with any man. I am ready to chance you, sir, if you will do the same by me."

"Well," began Barnes deliberately, "I guess you will have to take a chance with me, Mr. Sprouse, for I refuse to commit myself until I know exactly what you are up to."

"In the first place, Mr. Barnes," said Sprouse, salting his eggs, "you have been thinking that I was sent down from Green Fancy to spy on you. Isn't that so?"

"I am answering no questions, Mr. Sprouse."

"You were wrong," said Sprouse, as if Barnes had answered in the affirmative. "I am working on my own. You may have observed that I did not accompany the sheriff's posse today. I was up in Hornville getting the final word from New York that you were on the level. I telephoned to New York. Eleven dollars and sixty cents. You were under suspicion until I hung up the receiver, I may say."

"Jones has been talking to you," said Barnes. "But you said a moment ago that you were up at Green Fancy last night. Not by invitation, I take it."

"I invited myself," said Sprouse succinctly. "Are you inclined to favor my proposition?"

"You haven't made one."

"By suggestion, Mr. Barnes. It is quite impossible for me to get inside that house. You appear to have the entree. You are working in the dark, guessing at everything. I am guessing at nothing. By combining forces we should bring this thing to a head, and—"

"Just a moment. You expect me to abuse the hospitality of—"

"I shall have to speak plainly, I see." He leaned forward, fixing Barnes with a pair of steady, earnest eyes. "Six months ago a certain royal house in Europe was despoiled of its jewels, its privy seal, its most precious state documents and its charter. They have been traced to the United States. I am here to recover them. That is the foundation of my story, Mr. Barnes.

"Without divulging the name of the house I will say that its sympathies have been from the outset friendly to the entente allies—especially with France. There are two branches of the ruling family, one in power, the other practically in exile. The state is a small one, but its integrity is of the highest. Its sons and daughters have married into the royal families of nearly all of the great nations of the continent. The present—or I should say, the late ruler, for he died on a field of battle not many months ago, had no direct heir. He was young and unmarried. I am not permitted to state with what army he was fighting, nor on which front he was killed. It is only necessary to say that his little state was gobbled up by the Teutonic allies. The branch of the family mentioned as being in exile lent its support to the cause of Germany, not for moral reasons but in the hope and with the understanding, I am to believe, that the crown lands would be the reward. The direct heir to the crown is a cousin of the late prince. He is now a prisoner of war in Austria. Other members of the family are held by the Bulgarians as prisoners of war. It is not stretching the imagination very far to picture them as already dead and out of the way. At the close of the war, if Germany is victorious, the crown will be placed upon the head of the pretender branch. Are you following me?"

"Yes," said Barnes, his nerves tingling. He was beginning to see a great light.

"Almost under the noses of the forces left by the Teutonic allies to hold the invaded territory the crown jewels, charter and so forth, heretofore mentioned, as they say in legal parlance, were surreptitiously removed from the palace and spirited away by persons loyal to the ruling branch of the family. As I have stated, I am engaged in the effort to recover them.

"Now we come to the present situation. Some months ago a member of the aforesaid royal house arrived in this country by way of Japan. He is a distant cousin of the crown, and in a way remotely looked upon as the heir apparent. Later on he sequestered himself in Canada. Our agents in Europe learned but recently that while he pretends to be loyal to the ruling house he is actually scheming against it. I have been ordered to run him to earth; for there is every reason to believe that the men who secured the treasure have been duped into regarding him as the avowed champion of the crown. Now, Mr. Barnes, without telling you how I have arrived at the conclusion, I am prepared to state that I believe this man to be at Green Fancy, and that in time the loot—to use a harsh word—will be delivered to him there. I am here to get it, one way or another, when that comes to pass."

"What led you to suspect that he is at Green Fancy, Mr. Sprouse?"

"History. It is known that this Mr. Curtis has spent a great deal of time in the country alluded to. As a matter of fact, his son, who lived in London, had rather extensive business interests there. This son was killed in the Balkan war several years ago. It is said that the man I am looking for was a friend of young Curtis, who married a Miss O'Dowd in London—the Honorable Miss O'Dowd, daughter of an Irish peer and sister of the chap you have met at Green Fancy. About six weeks ago a former equerry in the royal household arrived in New York. Through him I learned that the daughter of the gentleman in whose house the senior Mr. Curtis was a frequent guest had been in the United States since some time prior to the beginning of the war. She was visiting friends in the States and has been unable to return to her own land, for reasons that must be obvious. I may as well confess that her father was, by marriage, an uncle of the late ruler.

"Since the invasion and overthrow of her country by the Teutonic allies she has been endeavoring to raise money here for the purpose of equipping and supporting the remnants of the small army that fought so valiantly in defense of the crown. These men, a few thousand only, are at present interned in a neutral country. I leave you to guess what will happen if she succeeds in supplying them with arms and ammunition. Her work is being carried on with the greatest secrecy. To bring the story to a close, I was instructed to keep close watch on the man O'Dowd. I traced him to this place. I was on the point of reporting to my superiors that he was in no way associated with the much-sought-after crown-cousin, and that Green Fancy was as free from taint as the village chapel, when out of a clear sky and almost under my very nose two men were mysteriously done away with at the very gates of the place. The killing of these two men changed the aspect completely. You will certainly agree with me after I have explained to you that the one known as Andrew Roon was no other than the equerry who had undertaken to find the—young woman."

Barnes drew a long breath. His mind was made up. He had decided to pool issues with the secret agent, but not until he was convinced that the result of their co-operation would in no way inflict a hardship upon the young woman who had appealed to him for help. He was certain that she was the fair propagandist described by Sprouse.

"And the young woman, what of her? She would, in any case, be held for examination and—"

"My dear sir, I may as well tell you now that she is a loyal subject, and, far from being in bad grace at court, is an object of extreme solicitude to the ambassador. From what I can gather she has disappeared completely. Roon was sent over here for the sole purpose of finding her and inducing her to return with him to Paris."

"And to take the treasure with her, I suppose," said Barnes dryly.

"Naturally."

"Well," began Barnes, introducing a harsh note into his voice, "I should say that if she is guilty of receiving this stolen property she ought to be punished. Jail is the place for her, Mr. Sprouse."

"Six Months Ago a Royal House Was Despoiled of Its Crown Jewels, Seal and Charter."

Sprouse put down his coffee cup rather suddenly. A queer pallor came into his face.

"You do not understand the situation. Haven't I made it plain to you that she is innocent of any intent to do wrong?"

"You have said so, Mr. Sprouse, but your idea of wrong and mine may not jibe."

"There cannot be two ways of looking at it, sir," said Sprouse, after a moment. "She could do no wrong."

Whereupon Barnes reached his hand across the table and laid it on Sprouse's. His eyes were dancing.

"That's just what I want to be sure about," he said. "It was my way of pulling out your intentions concerning her."

"What do you mean?"

"Come with me to my room," said Barnes, suppressing his excitement. "I think I can tell you where she is—and a great deal more that you ought to know."

In the little room upstairs he told the whole story. The little man listened without so much as a single word of interruption or interrogation. Somewhat breathlessly Barnes came to the end.

"And now, Mr. Sprouse, what do you make of it all?" he inquired.

Sprouse leaned back in his chair, suddenly relaxing. "I am completely at sea," he said, and Barnes looked at him in surprise.

"By Jove, I thought it would all be as clear as day to you. Here is your man and also your woman, and the traveling bag full of—"

"Right you are," interrupted Sprouse. "That is all simple enough. But, my dear Barnes, can you tell me what Mr. Secretary Loeb's real name is? Why has he established himself so close to the Canadian line, and why the mobilization? I refer to his army of huskies."

"Heirs apparent usually have some sort of a bodyguard, don't they?"

Sprouse was staring thoughtfully at the ceiling. When he finally lowered his eyes it was to favor Barnes with a deep, inscrutable smile.

"I dare say the first thing for me to do is to advise the Canadian authorities to keep a sharp lookout along the border."

CHAPTER XII.

The First Wayfarer Accepts an Invitation.

Barnes insisted that the first thing to be considered was the release of Miss Cameron.

"If we can't think of any other way to get her out of this devilish predicament, Sprouse, I shall apply to Washington for help."

"And be laughed at, my friend," said the secret agent. "It is not a matter for the government to meddle in at all."

"Well, something has to be done at once," said Barnes doggedly. "She is depending on me. If you could have seen the light that leaped into her glorious eyes when I—"

"Yes, I know. I've heard she is quite a pretty girl. You needn't—"

"Quite a pretty girl!" exclaimed Barnes. "Why, she is the loveliest thing that God ever created. She has the face of—"

"I am beginning to understand O'Dowd's interest in her, Mr. Barnes. He has probably fallen in love with her with as little difficulty as you have experienced, and almost as expeditiously. He has seen a little more of her than you, but—"

"Don't talk nonsense. I'm not in love with her."

"Can you speak with equal authority for Mr. O'Dowd? He is a very susceptible Irishman, I am told."

"I don't believe he will get much encouragement from her, Mr. Sprouse," said Barnes stiffly.

"If she is as clever as I think she is she will encourage him tremendously. I would if I were in her place. Mr. O'Dowd is only human. He isn't immune."

"I catch the point, Mr. Sprouse," said Barnes, rather gloomily. He did not like to think of the methods that might have to be employed in the subjugation of Mr. O'Dowd. "There is a rather important question I'd like to ask. Is she even remotely eligible to her country's throne?"

"Remotely, yes," said Sprouse.

"So remotely that she could marry a chap like O'Dowd without giving much thought to future complications?" he ventured.

"She'd be just as safe in marrying O'Dowd as she would in marrying you," was Sprouse's unsatisfactory response. The man's brow was wrinkled in thought. "See here, Mr. Barnes, I am planning a visit to Green Fancy tonight. How would you like to accompany me?"

"I'd like nothing better," said Barnes, with enthusiasm.

"Will you agree to obey instructions? I can't have you muddling things up, you know."

"The grounds are carefully guarded," said Barnes, after they had discussed the project for some time. "Miss Cameron is constantly under the watchful eye of one or more of the crowd."

"I know. I passed a couple of them last night," said Sprouse calmly. "By the way, don't you think it would be very polite of you to invite the Green Fancy party over here to have an old-fashioned country dinner with you tonight?"

"It would be useless, Mr. Sprouse. They will not come."

"I am perfectly aware of that, but it won't do any harm to ask them will it?"

Barnes chuckled. "I see. Establishing myself as an innocent bystander, eh?"

"Get O'Dowd on the telephone and ask him if they can come," said Sprouse.

"But there is Jones to consider. The telephone is in his office. What will he think—"

"Jones is all right," said Sprouse briefly. "Come along. You can call up from my room." He grinned slyly. "Such a thing as tapping the wire, you know."

Sprouse had installed a telephone in his room, carrying a wire upstairs from an attachment made in the cellar of the Tavern. He closed the door to his little room on the top floor.

Barnes and Sprouse make an exciting midnight visit to Green Fancy.

The Great Test.

Self-control is no easy matter when we are alone, says New Success Magazine. But the moment our lives are thrown in with others, then comes the struggle. To maintain our equanimity, to restrain the sharp retort, the impatient exclamation, to get along smoothly with disagreeable people, without friction or jarring—this is the great life test. This is what builds character, what tests manhood or womanhood, what makes the ideal employee.

Burning Truth.

Said the facetious feller: "These golf fanatics get a lot of satisfaction out of reducin' their strokes from last season, but the real joy of life comes from bein' able to reduce the number of tons of coal from the winter before."

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART; IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to the kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. They are the filterers of your blood. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, despondency, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it. Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning.

After you feel somewhat improved continue to take one or two capsules each day, so as to keep the first-class condition and ward off the danger of other attacks.

Ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. Three sizes. Money refunded if they do not help you.

Getting Madder All the Time.

Bobby noticed that his friend Johnny was sitting on little Willie's neck, while the latter was faced to the ground in a helpless position.

"What are you sitting on Willie for?" demanded Bobby.

"Oh, I'm just going to sit on him till I count a hundred, 'cause my mamma told me to always count a hundred when you are angry before striking anyone, and I don't want him to get away."

REPTILES AT HOME IN SAND

Naturalist Makes Interesting Report of Habits of Small Dwellers of the Desert.

Quaint and curious are the ways of some reptiles of the desert, as revealed by the famous naturalist C. L. Camp, who has been studying them in the Colorado desert. He tells of some reptiles, the burrowing snake sonora, the gridiron-tailed lizard, the ocellated sand lizard, and the desert "horned toad," which actually swim into the loose sand by the strong lateral movements of their heads. The gridiron-tailed lizard is very swift and agile, and when chased will race over the sand at fifteen miles an hour. Most of the desert reptiles of Colorado are colored like their surroundings, and are difficult to detect. Others can change their colors to suit their surroundings, while not a few of the desert lizards are able to part with their tails very readily when they are seized. There is humor in the ways of desert tortoises. When one meets another, unless both are males, when a fight invariably takes place, each nods its head rapidly up and down as though in salutation, and sometimes noses are touched as they pass.

Stung.

Harry and Grace each received a nickel with which to buy candy. They hurried down the street to a little shop, where the tempting array of chocolates in the window and the inviting sign, "The Busy Bee," above the door, lured them within. They made their purchases and left. Once out on the sidewalk, Harry held up his sack, in which rattled wee particles of candy.

"Busy Bee," he snorted. "No wonder they call it that if everybody who goes in there gets stung like we did."—Indianapolis News.

Belgium After the War.

Statistical students of the cost of living in Brussels show that for necessities the price of which may be designated as 100 in April, 1914, Brussels paid 699 in January, 1919, or nearly a sevenfold increase. There has been a constant drop since January, reaching 564 in February, 403 in March, 344 in April and 333 in May, 1919. Articles not necessities have come down from 615 in January to 400 in May, and clothing, shoes, coal and light represented by 516 in January, have dropped to 351 in May.

"Talk of the Greeks at Thermopylae!
They fought like mad 'till the last was dead;
But Alvin C. York of Tennessee
Stayed cool to the end though his hair was red,
Stayed mountain cool, yet blazed that gray
October the eighth as 'Redhead's Day.'"

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN.

ALVIN CULLUM YORK, corporal in Company G, Three Hundred and Twenty-eighth Infantry, Eighty-second (All-American) division, October 8, 1918, in the Meuse-Argonne battle, made his name a household word in every American home where there is fighting blood. What he did is briefly and concisely this:

York was one of 10 Americans ordered to put out of action certain German machine guns over a ridge. In a cuplike valley they found 30 Huns, officers and men, apparently holding a conference. The Yanks opened fire and the Huns surrendered. Then dozens of hidden machine guns on the farther slope not 30 yards away opened up. Prisoners and Yanks threw themselves flat. Six Yanks were killed and three, including the sergeant in command, were wounded. This left York and six privates. The six privates were guarding the prisoners and could not help York. Directly in front of York lay some of the prisoners, so the machine gunners had to fire a little high. The stream of bullets cut off the bushes just above York's head as clean as would a scythe.

Then York got into action. With 17 shots from his rifle he killed 10 Huns, yelling between shots, "Surrender! Come down!" Then a lieutenant and seven men jumped up and charged him with bayonets from a distance of 20 yards. He killed all eight with his pistol.

When the Hun lieutenant fell the machine gunners quit firing; they couldn't stand York's shooting. York continued to pick off Huns. A major came to York from the prisoners and in English he said that he would make the machine gunners surrender if he would stop shooting. York agreed and the gunners abandoned 30 machine guns, surrendered and came down.

York and the six privates rounded up their prisoners, picked up the three wounded Yanks and started back for the American lines. York marched the major in front of him. The Yanks ran into several other machine gun nests from the rear, but after York had killed one Hun with his pistol all the others surrendered at the command of the major. When York reached the American lines his prisoners numbered 132, officers and men.

When York's exploit became known every detail was verified. He was made a sergeant and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Congressional Medal of Honor. When he arrived in New York recently the city was his. Since then his fellow citizens have paid him honor at every opportunity. In Washington the house of representatives rose up and cheered him. Governor Roberts went up into the mountains and married him to Grace Williams, who had been waiting for him. Fortunes have been offered him to write for the press and to go into the motion pictures and on the stage.

York is generally spoken of as the "greatest hero of the war." That is nonsense. He is also spoken of as the "bravest soldier of the war." That is nonsense, too.

York's exploit is thrilling. But to the good American the most fascinating thing about it all is the man himself. Here are some highlights on his individuality:

He is a Tennessee mountaineer of unmixed English blood. He lives in a mountain shack, built a century ago by his great-great-great-grandfather.

He is a blacksmith and farmer, and supports his widowed mother and his unmarried brothers and sisters.

When younger he spent some of his time "a-drinkin' an' a-gamblin' an' a-hellin' around." Then he joined the Church of Christ and Central Union, becoming second elder and leading the singing.

The draft found him a conscientious objector, torn between patriotism and the belief that to fight and kill was sin. He compromised by going to Camp Gordon and frankly stating his position. Captain Danforth succeeded in convincing him from the Bible that "blessed is the peacemaker." So York went to France with a clear conscience to help make peace.

His conscience is still at ease. He believes he was fighting for a sanctified cause. Also, he is still sure "Blessed is the peacemaker."

He is thirty-two, stands a little over six feet and weighs 205 pounds. He is redheaded. He is a dead shot with both rifle and pistol. He is the rare fighter who does not "see red," but gets cooler and more efficient as the danger grows.

His features are clear cut, not rugged. He has gray eyes, flecked with brown. The expression of his face is one of kindly humor. His voice is pleasant, and even gentle for so large a man. There is absolute sureness of self in his steady gaze. But—stir him to resentment, and his eyes harden and contract and into his gentle voice comes a trumpet-note of danger.

He is genuinely religious. He prayed while he fought, and believes that God watched over him.

In all the honors showered upon him he has never lost his balance for one moment. He looked everybody in the eye, smiled his genial smile and kept his perspective.

He is going back to his mountain valley at Pall Mall Cross Roads and take up again the life for which he judges himself best fitted.

Conscience and gun and redhead nerve; efficiency, balance and modest self-respect.

Tuskless Elephants in Ceylon

An elephant without tusks seems almost impossible, yet in Ceylon the male elephants have no tusks at all; they have miserable little grubbers projecting two or three inches from the upper jaw and inclining downwards. Nothing produces either ivory or horn in the specimens throughout Ceylon. Although some of the buffaloes have tolerably fine heads, they will not bear a comparison with those of other countries. The horns of the native cattle are not above four inches in length. The elk's and the spotted deer's antlers are small compared with deer of their size in India. This is the more singular, as it is evident from the geological formation that at some remote period Ceylon was not an island, but formed a portion of the mainland. It is thought that there must be elements wanting in the Ceylon pasturage for the formation of ivory.

Coal in the Ice Regions.

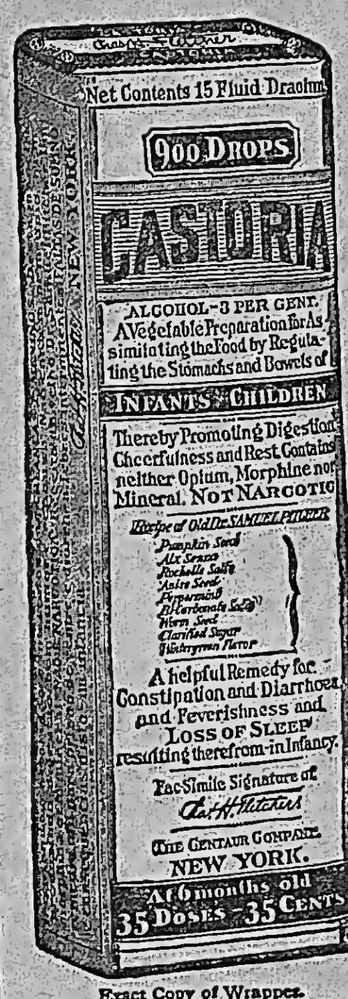

Geologists have discovered immense deposits of coal in Spitzbergen, and it is now apparent that, in spite of ice, cold and fog, Spitzbergen is a land fraught with many commercial possibilities. The coal is practically all on the surface, and deep mining is unnecessary.

Imitations Are Dangerous.

AN OHIO druggist writes to "The Practical Druggist," a prominent New York Drug Journal, as follows: "Please furnish formula for Castoria. All the formulas I have worked with are either ineffective or disagreeable to administer."

To this "The Practical Druggist" replies: "We do not supply formulas for proprietary articles. We couldn't if we wanted to. Your experience with imitative formulas is not surprising, but just what is to be expected. When Castoria is wanted, why not supply the genuine? If you make a substitute, it is not fair or right to label it Castoria. We can give you all sorts of laxative preparations for children, but not Castoria, and we think a mother who asks for Castoria would not feel kindly toward you if you gave her your own product under such a name."

No mother with a spark of affection for her child will overlook the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher when buying Castoria.

CASTORIA

Mothers Must Use Care.

Why do we so often call your attention to imitations of Fletcher's Castoria? Because it is a baby's medicine and imitations are always dangerous, particularly imitations of a remedy for infants.

Your druggist may not keep an imitation but they are to be found on drug-store shelves. Reliable druggists think only of the welfare of their customers. The other kind only of the greater profit to be made on imitations.

Your own judgment tells you that Fletcher's Castoria having for over thirty years at great expense held up its reputation, must jealously guard it. Then, it follows that this company must use the very best of material. Must employ experts in the selection of the herbs. Must retain skilled chemists in its manufacture.

Your same good judgment must tell you that these irresponsible imitators are trading on your credulity and the reputation built up by Mr. Fletcher, during all these years, for his Castoria.

STEWART & KIDD CO.

FLY TACKLE FOR BEGINNER.

My Dear Buck:

You want to get into the fly-casting game, but you feel that the price of an outfit is high. That all depends, old man, on how you go about it. You have heard so much about rods at $25 to $50 and so on, that it makes you feel sick when you think of practicing on such high priced tackle. You expect to give the tackle some hard knocks before you get the hang of the sport and you see your bankroll with a healthy case of shrinkage during the operation.

For a starter there is no need of going deeper into the mint for an outfit than say $15 to $18 and if you do feel like playing her a little higher, $25 makes a limit, and at that you can get a good serviceable outfit that will take you through the season and give you a working practice that will make you a "stay-for-sure" fly-caster.

Select Rod With Care.

Of course every fellow wants as fine an outfit as he can select after he's in the game and has the rough edges worn off. A rod for instance should have the same consideration that one gives to the selection of a shotgun or rifle. It takes the same place in the fishing kit that the gun does in the hunting layout. A fellow pays a good price for a gun, he selects the best he can get and is mighty particular about the drop—the bore and all details, because he depends on his gun to stand him well at the right moment. Therefore as the rod holds the same value to the fisherman, the care in selection and the money put into the rod covers a big vital point in the outfit.

However, for a starter we can select a well made and serviceable line of tackle at a very moderate cost. Here is an outfit, from which a selection can be made at either end, as to price, and it will cover tackle good enough for any beginner. You can buy the $5 rod or the $10 one or go anywhere between, and you will get good value as far as service goes.

Outfit for the Beginner.

Fly rod of split bamboo or steel, $5 to $10.
Reel, single action, click, $1 to $5.
Enameled waterproof silk line, $1.50.
Half dozen 6 foot gut leaders, $1.25.
Two dozen artificial flies, about eight patterns, $3.
Fly book, $1.50.
Wicker creel or basket, $2.
Landing net (folding), $1.25.
Leader box, 25c.

In selecting your rod, make it a 9 to 9½ foot in length, 5 ounce weight, three piece with extra tip, snake guides, German silver ferrules and solid metal reel seat. The rod when together should turn around in the hand with exactly the same droop all around. It should show an even curve without lopping over to one side and have plenty of action when you whip or bend it.

The line should be enameled waterproof silk, level braided size E. Here you can go a little deeper if you wish and get a double tapered line, which being lighter at the ends makes less friction in going through the guides and enables you to shoot out the line for greater distance in your casts; however a level braided line will answer the purpose.

The reel is not as important in fly-casting as in bait-casting, as it is merely used to store surplus line. The featherweight, 60-yard size, weighing 3 ounces, makes a good all round reel, while the automatics are coming into use to a greater extent each season.

Flies You Swear By.

Whip a stream for a few hours trying every fly in your kit without a rise, when the fish are "off," and then pick a fly at the windup when they happen to be "on" and get a well-filled creel and you will play that fly clean across the board, until the same thing happens over again with another fly. One well-known fisherman who carries in his kit an assortment of about a dozen flies, admits that in the past five years he has seldom used other than three flies and he is some fisherman at that, not the porch variety.

HOARDED FOOD SEIZED BY U. S.

Confiscation Penalty to Be Added to Fines and Prison for Guilty Ones.

TAKE GOODS FROM STORES

Government Cuts Prices as the Market Falls—Lowers Cost of Army Goods to Meet the Reduction Made by Retailers.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—In its drive to reduce the high cost of living, the federal government began the seizure of huge amounts of foods in storage houses.

The first seizures were reported from Chattanooga, Tenn., and Jacksonville, Fla., and the United States district attorney's office announced that similar action would be taken in the Chicago district.

Governors of a number of states have asked the assistance of the department of justice to force into the market "amazing quantities" of food being held in storage, apparently until prices increased. Attorney General Palmer announced in Washington that district attorneys had been ordered to co-operate with the governors.

Not only will Chicago food hoarders be fined and imprisoned, but their stocks will be seized and sold.

At Chattanooga government agents went to the storage plant of the Atlantic Ice and Coal corporation and took possession of 84,000 dozen eggs that were being held for Morris & Co. of Chicago.

At Jacksonville, according to an Associated Press telegram, more than a million eggs, hundreds of thousands of tins of canned foods and 27,500 pounds of sugar were seized in raids on wholesale food warehouses and cold-storage plants by federal officers.

Plans for the seizing of all hoards of food that may be found are now being perfected, according to Mr. Milroy. Violators of the anti-hoarding law will be liable not only to pay a fine of $5,000, or imprisonment for two years, or both, but are also likely to have the government confiscate the food and sell it.

It is expected that this punishment will be effective against profiteers.

The Cuban sugar crop is the largest this year in the history of the island, according to H. H. Rolopp, who is the head of the sugar distributing committee for the government. Most of it has been marketed, he said.

Food caches will be seized for uses of the army and navy and later will be directed to civilian uses. Release of sugar for the canning season is promised.

Determination on the part of consumers to take advantage of the government co-operation in bringing about a lower cost of living was indicated in the restricted buying of distributers in the produce market during the day.

Sales of government foods continued with reflected lower prices in competing commodities.

Washington, Aug. 15.—To meet reductions recently made by retailers, a new scale of prices for surplus foodstuffs was put into effect by the war department.

Roast beef was reduced from $2.13 to $1.00 per six pound can; bacon from 35 to 31 cents per pound, and No. 3 cans of beans from 11 to 9 cents. Prices on other items were reduced in proportion.

SEND RANSOM FOR AMERICAN FLYERS

United States Rushes $15,000 to Two Yankees in Mexican Bandit Lair.

WASHINGTON WARNS MEXICO

New Crisis Seen as Sharp Messages Are Sent to Carranza—Troops of Eighth Cavalry March for the Rio Grande.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The American embassy at Mexico City was instructed by the state department to immediately call upon the Mexican government for quick action to effect the release of Lieuts. Paul H. Davis and Harold G. Peterson, American army aviators, who were captured by Mexican bandits near Candelaria, Tex., while patrolling the border, and who are threatened with death unless $15,000 ransom is paid.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 20.—Troops of the Eighth cavalry were on the march on the American side toward the Rio Grande Monday night and army truck companies were being assembled for immediate use.

Marfa, Tex., Aug. 20.—Authorization for the payment of the $15,000 ransom asked by Mexican bandits for the release of Lieuts. Paul H. Davis and Harold G. Peterson, was received here from Maj. Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, commander of the southern department, and the money will probably be delivered late in the day to an agent of the bandits at or near Candelaria, Tex., it was announced here.

The American aviators are being held somewhere in Mexico south of Candelaria.

H. M. Fennell, vice president of the Marfa bank, left for Candelaria with the ransom money raised here. He was accompanied by a military guard commanded by Maj. O. C. Smith.

It is not known here when the aviators are expected to recross the border to the United States.

Aviators on detached service at the Big Bend headquarters also left here for the Candelaria border presumably to watch from the air for the return of the aviators.

As the payment of the ransom has been officially authorized by the southern department the money raised by the cattlemen of the Big Bend district at the cowboy camp meeting will be reimbursed, it was announced. The money raised by the cattlemen was used.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 20.—Somewhere in Mexico, south of the Big Bend district of West Texas, Lieuts. Paul H. Davis and Harold G. Peterson, U. S. A., are being held by Mexican bandits for $15,000 ransom.

After eight days of suspense since the aviators, patrolling the border, disappeared, messages were received by military authorities at Marfa, Tex., demanding payment of the ransom in gold to Dawkins Kilpatrick of Candelaria, Tex.; or the Americans would be killed, according to the message.

Another message, signed by the aviators, accompanied the demand for the ransom, in which they stated practically the same facts as contained in the message from the bandit leader.

They also sent messages to their relatives in Strathmore, Cal., and Hutchinson, Minn., urging them to see that the ransom was raised at once.

Another message was later sent to Candelaria, Tex., addressed to Dawkins Kilpatrick, an American, and signed by one of the bandit band, saying they would kill the aviators if there were any signs that the American military commanders were preparing to pursue the bandits.

Replies were received from the parents of Lieutenant Peterson stating they would furnish the ransom if the government failed to put up the money, according to messages from Marfa.

These replies were immediately given to a courier, who attempted to make an effort to reach the bandit rendezvous south of the border.

Whether or not he succeeded was not known here or at Marfa. It is also believed he carried assurance to the bandits that the ransom would be paid.

This and other developments has led army officers here to believe the bandits are not far from the border and are holding the American aviators in some out-of-the-way canyon until the ransom is paid, whereupon they will release them and permit them to go to the border. Nothing has been heard of the scout biplane which the men flew when they were captured.

TO MARKET

SUGAR PRICE 11 CENTS

ATTORNEY GENERAL PALMER SETS FIGURE FOR RETAILER.

If Grocer Charges More He Is Profiteering, District Attorney Told; After Clothing, Etc.

Washington, Aug. 15.—Through license regulations and the power of the food administration to procure the cancellation of licenses, the department of justice hopes to reach some cases of profiteering in sugar that would be more difficult to reach through enforcement of the criminal provisions of the food control act.

This position of the department was made plain in a circular sent to district attorneys calling attention to the fact that food administration officials had taken the position that sugar should not retail for more than 11 cents a pound and that "where it is retailing for more it indicates that either the wholesaler or retailer is making unreasonable profit."

Mr. Palmer conferred with Clarence Wilson, food administrator for the District of Columbia, about efforts to reduce prices in Washington. He also had a conference with F. C. Henderschoot, secretary of the New York fair price committee.

Mr. Palmer appeared before the senate agriculture committee to explain amendments to the food control act extending antiprofiteering sections to clothing and other necessities and providing penalties for violations of the law. When the committee met, senators expressed divided opinions as to the necessity for the legislation.

CALL OFF BIG RAIL STRIKE

Threat of Big Traffic Tieup Is Removed After Spirited Meeting at Chicago —Lay Trouble to I. W. W.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The break in the railroad shop crafts' strike came on Thursday when representatives of 27,000 car men decided by an overwhelming vote to return to work. The vote to remain in affiliation with the international organization of the union instead of with the Chicago district council of federated shop crafts which has had charge of the strike, came after a spirited session during which it was charged that the I. W. W. has been responsible for the rebellion in the ranks of the shop men. The resolution providing that the men resume work was presented by P. A. Halleen, president of the central body of car men, at a mass meeting in Car Men's hall. The meeting was addressed by J. M. Patterson, international vice president of the association, who laid the disturbances in the Chicago district to the influence of a "red" element.

FORD WINS LIBEL SUIT

SIX-CENT VERDICT AWARDED IN CASE THAT COST MILLION.

Magnate Awarded Nominal Damages Because Chicago Tribune Called Him an Anarchist.

Mount Clemens, Mich., Aug. 16.—Henry Ford won a verdict in his libel suit against the Chicago Tribune.

At 8:15 o'clock at night the jury, which for three months has been hearing testimony and arguments in the suit, returned a decision in favor of the auto manufacturer, who sought vindication in the courts of the charge made by the Tribune that "Ford is an anarchist."

Trial of the suit, which, it is estimated, cost a million, was featured by the testimony of Mr. Ford, his son Edsel, owners and editors of the Tribune and notable educators and clergymen.

The jury awarded Mr. Ford damages of 6 cents, thus following the precedent of the famous Roosevelt damage suit jury of some years ago in awarding a moral victory.

The jury had been deliberating since 0:55 o'clock in the morning.

Judge Tucker, instructing the jury, stated "the right of fair comment" is expected in the case of Mr. Ford, because his position as a great employer of labor and entry as a propagandist into the discussion of the preparedness question made him a public character.

The judge held that a newspaper has no greater privilege in making comment than has an individual.

The jury was instructed further to dismiss the case against the Solomon News company, which on a purely technical charge that it distributed in Michigan 208 copies of the Tribune issue of June 23, 1916, containing the alleged libelous editorial headed "Ford Is an Anarchist," was made a co-defendant.

The judge instructed that plaintiff's charges of pro-Germanism against the Tribune and of a selfish interest in advocating intervention in Mexico had not been proved and the jury need not consider it.

GRAB 28,180 POUNDS COFFEE

Government Officials Seize Huge Supply From Storage Warehouse at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 15.—Federal officials here seized 284,180 pounds of coffee held in storage in a warehouse on a libel information issued by the United States district attorney. It was alleged in the information that the coffee is held for J. Aron & Co. of New York.

The information alleged that the coffee had been in the warehouse since October 1, last, and was willfully hoarded to increase its price.

MOBS IN IRELAND ATTACK SOLDIERS

Rioting and Looting Occur at Londonderry — Troops Charge Crowds.

PROPERTY LOSS IS HEAVY

Stones Hurled at Troops When They Attempt to Break Up Nationalist Demonstration—Sinn Fein Policy Assailed.

Londonderry, Aug. 19.—Rioting and looting occurred in this city during Friday night and Saturday morning.

Troops charged on mobs, but did not fire any shots. The soldiers, however, were met with a volley of stones when they attempted to break up a nationalists' demonstration.

The monetary loss from looting and from damage to property is estimated at many thousands of dollars by police authorities.

The trouble started when nationalists set fire to a large number of tar barrels which had been collected beneath an arch, over which was displayed a picture of Edward de Valera, president of the Irish republic, and sang the "Soldiers' Song." Unionists responded by singing the national anthem.

One force of troops kept the crowds apart while other detachments attempted to clear the streets, charging upon the throngs repeatedly.

Bricks and stones were hurled at the charging troops, one soldier being seriously hurt. The nationalists were finally driven back to their own quarters.

Windows were smashed and shops were looted by the crowds, and the city was in darkness the entire night. More rioting is feared.

Although several revolver shots were heard during the rioting, no report of anyone having been wounded has been received. The troops declare that none of them fired any shots, and that when they drove back the crowds they advanced with their bayonets raised in the air.

Belfast, Aug. 18.—Ten nationalist excursionists were injured during a fight Friday with Orangemen at Lisburn, County Down. Serious rioting also occurred at Coal Island, County Tyrone.

The trouble at Lisburn took place after the nationalists had attended a "ladyday" celebration at Louth.

In the riot at Coal Island several policemen and military officers were injured severely.

London, Aug. 18.—John Devlin, nationalist member of parliament for Belfast, addressing a meeting of nationalists at Blackrock, near Drogheda, Ireland, made an appeal for the old nationalist policy as against the Sinn Fein policy in the matter of abstention from attendance upon the sessions of parliament.

Mr. Devlin contended that the presence of the eighty Irish members at Westminster during the peace conference would have changed Ireland's fate, because every voice raised for freedom in the house of commons "responded through two hemispheres."

The nationalists, Mr. Devlin continued, had given the Sinn Feiners fair play, but in the future must show whether the old policy, so fruitful of results, or the new policy, so prolific in promises, was the better for Ireland.

DAYLIGHT BILL IS VETOED

President Wilson Declares Law Is Aid to Increase of Industrial Production.

Washington, Aug. 18.—President Wilson vetoed the bill repealing the daylight saving law. The president said he did so with "the utmost reluctance" because he realized "the very considerable and in some respects very serious inconveniences to which the daylight saving law subjects the farmers of the country."

This is the second time the president has vetoed repeal of the law by which the clocks are set forward an hour on the last Sunday in March and turned back an hour the last Sunday in October.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss Flo Kelly, 476 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

WIFE GAVE HIM INSPIRATION

Author, at His Wit's End for Plot, Got Excellent Idea From His Better Half.

How the idea of a new book was suggested in an unexpected manner to the author is told by William J. Locke in "The Rough Road."

"One evening a couple of months after I had finished 'The Red Planet,' I was tearing my hair and saying that this time I really had come to the end of things and would never again have the ghost of an idea for another book, when my wife, who was sitting on the divan in the drawing room playing unconcernedly with our little Pekinese—she had heard this cry of wolf so many times before—addressed this little beast—I love him dearly, by the way—in the maudlin tone of which we both are guilty: 'Why doesn't he write a nice book about you, darling?' Whereupon I clapped my hand to my forehead and cried: 'I will! I'll write a story about a man brought up like that dog and pitched into the war!' And I went straight into my study and set to work on the scheme."

FIGURES OF AMERICA'S PART IN WAR PASS ALL FORMER RECORDS

Col. Leonard P. Ayers Prepares a Remarkable Statistical Summary Showing Comparative Costs in Men, Money and Material for All the Countries Engaged—Cost to the United States Is $22,000,000,000.

Washington.—The war cost the United States directly about $22,000,000,000, or nearly enough to pay the entire cost of running the American government from 1791 up to the outbreak of the European war. For every hundred American soldiers and sailors who served in the war with Germany two were killed or died of disease during the period of hostilities. The number of men serving in the armed forces of the nation during the war was 4,800,000, of whom 4,000,000 served in the army.

These facts are set forth in a statistical summary of "The War With Germany," compiled under the direction of Col. Leonard P. Ayers, chief of the statistics branch of the general staff of the army.

This summary, just published by Colonel Ayers by direction of the secretary of war, is a complete review of America's participation in the war against Germany condensed into less than 150 pages. It is a detailed summary of American military operations, and yet the long statistical tables usually found in official reports are entirely lacking.

Col. Leonard P. Ayers is the only officer from civilian life who has risen to the position of chief of a division of the general staff. Before the war he was a director of the Russell Sage Foundation. He was chief statistical officer of the peace committee. After his return here he received the distinguished service medal.

Some of the Figures.

Some of the statistical summaries in the report show:

The war cost the United States considerably more than $1,000,000 an hour for over two years.

America's expenditures in the war were sufficient to have carried on the Revolutionary war continuously for more than a thousand years at the rate of expenditure which that war actually involved.

During the first three months expenditures were at the rate of $2,000,000 a day. During the next year they averaged more than $22,000,000 a day. For the final ten months the daily average was over $44,000,000.

The total war costs of all nations were about $186,000,000,000, of which the allies and the United States spent two-thirds and the enemy one-third.

The three nations spending the greatest amounts were Germany, Great Britain and France, in that order. After them come the United States and Austria-Hungary, with substantially equal expenditures.

The United States spent about one-eighth of the entire cost of the war and something less than one-fifth of the expenditures of the allied side.

The total battle deaths of all nations in this war were greater than all deaths in all the wars in the previous hundred years.

Russian battle deaths were 34 times as heavy as those of the United States, those of Germany 32 times as great, France 28 times and the British 18 times as large.

Infantry Suffered Most.

In the American army the casualty rate in the infantry was higher than in any other service, and that for officers was higher than for men.

For every man killed in battle seven were wounded.

Five out of every six men sent to hospitals on account of wounds were cured and returned to duty.

Pneumonia killed more soldiers than were killed in battle. Meningitis was the next most serious disease.

The British sent more men to France in their first year of war than we did in our first year, but it took England three years to reach a strength of 2,000,000 men in France, and the United States accomplished it in one-half of that time.

In the physical examinations the states of the middle West made the best showing. Country boys did better than city boys, white better than colored and native better than foreign born.

Most of the troops who sailed for France left New York. Half of them landed in England and the other half in France.

Of every 100 Americans who went over, 49 went in British ships, 45 in American ships, three in Italian, two in French and one in Russian shipping under English control.

American cargo ships averaged one complete trip every 70 days and troop ships one complete trip every 35 days.

The cargo fleet was almost entirely American. It reached the size of 2,600,000 deadweight tons, and carried to Europe about 7,500,000 tons of cargo.

Work of Engineers.

American engineers built in France 83 new ship berths, 1,000 miles of standard gauge track and 538 miles of narrow gauge track.

The signal corps strung in France 100,000 miles of telephone and telegraph wire.

Prior to the armistice 40,000 trucks were shipped to the forces in France.

Construction projects in the United States cost twice as much as the Panama canal, and construction overseas was on nearly twice as large a scale.

The entire number of American machine guns produced to the end of 1918 was 227,000.

The Browning machine guns are believed to be more effective than the corresponding weapons used in any other army.

American production of rifle ammunition amounted to approximately 3,500,000,000 rounds, of which 1,500,000,000 rounds were shipped overseas.

The number of rounds of complete artillery ammunition produced in American plants was in excess of 20,000,000, compared with 9,000,000 rounds secured from the French and British.

In the first 20 months after the declaration of war by each country the British did better than the United States in the production of light artillery, and the United States excelled them in producing heavy artillery and both light and heavy ammunition.

At the end of the war American production of smokeless powder was 45 per cent greater than the French and British production combined. The American production of high explosives was 40 per cent greater than Great Britain's and nearly double that of France.

Out of every hundred days that American combat divisions were in line in France they were supported by their own artillery for 75 days, by British artillery for five days and by French for one and a half days.

In round numbers, America had in France 3,500 pieces of artillery, of which nearly 500 were made in America, and Americans used on the firing line 2,250 pieces, of which over 100 were made in America.

Airplane Production.

When the United States entered the war the allies made the designs of their planes available to Americans, and before the end of hostilities furnished from their own manufacture 3,800 service planes.

Aviation training schools in the United States graduated 8,602 men from elementary courses and 4,028 from advanced courses. More than 5,000 pilots and observers were sent overseas.

There were produced in the United States to November 30, 1918, more than 8,000 training planes and more than 10,000 training engines.

The American air force at the front grew from three squadrons in April to 45 in November, 1918. On November 11 the 45 squadrons had an equipment of 740 planes.

Of 2,098 planes sent to the zone of the advance for American aviators, 607, or nearly one-fourth, were of American production.

American air squadrons brought down in combat 755 enemy planes, while their own losses of planes numbered only 357.

American divisions were in battle for 200 days and engaged in 13 major operations.

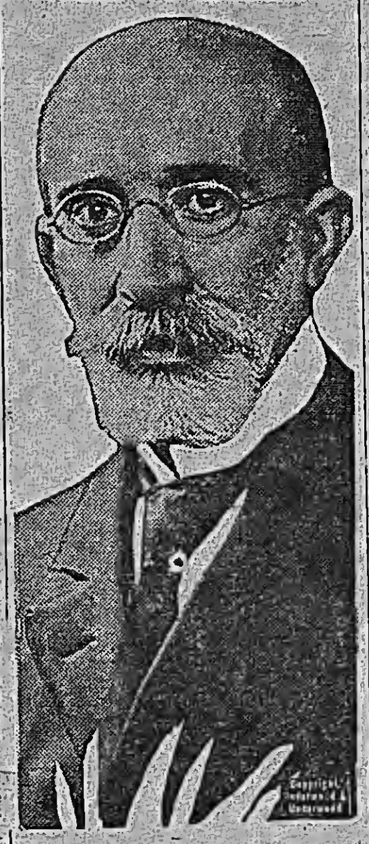

From the middle of August until the end of the war the American divisions held during the greater part of the time a front longer than that held by the British.

In October the American divisions held 101 miles of line, or 23 per cent of the entire western front.

In the battle of St. Mihiel 550,000 Americans were engaged, compared with about 100,000 on the northern side in the battle of Gettysburg. The artillery fired more than 1,000,000 shells in four hours, which is the most intense concentration of artillery fire recorded in history.

The Meuse-Argonne battle lasted for 47 days, during which 1,200,000 American troops were engaged.

TRAVEL IN JAPAN

Hotel Customs Somewhat Embarrassing to Europeans.

Taking Bath in Public, in Water That Would Boil a Lobster, Is, or Used to Be, in the Nature of Torture.

With the advent of the "modern hotel" in Japan the old inns, or resthouses, have been to a large extent relegated to obscurity, but some still survive in parts where European travelers seldom penetrate. The kind of welcome accorded to visitors in one of the village inns is very far removed from western ideas of hospitality. Here is the interesting experience of a traveler as related in The Caterer and Hotelkeepers' Gazette:

"As soon as I arrived I was conducted by the polite hostess into the chief guestroom, which looked out upon the cool orchard of a temple.

"Cushions were brought in, and bright kimonos. I took off my dusty English clothes, and put on first the lower kimona, made of cotton; and then a gaudy silk one, bright with the colors of the hotel.

"The room, like all Japanese rooms, was bare except for a single decoration. There is always a special corner for the room's ornament, which is sometimes a vase of flowers, sometimes a piece of china, sometimes simply a painting upon silk or a woodcut. The subjects are not seldom such as bring a blush to the European cheek, but they have no such effect on the Japanese, who seem more concerned with the arrangement than the subject of the ornaments. There are strict rules for decoration; it is laid down, for example, that flowers of different colors should not be mixed in one vase.

"At length, because I was famishing, a low table and a brazier were brought in and set in front of me and my cushions.

"Every time I thought I had finished, the hostess or one of the maids would trip in with another tray of dishes and put them before me on the table. Had I not been able to use chopsticks before, I should certainly have become expert by the end of that meal.

"A little while after the meal—for it did end at last—I was told that the bath was ready. I was taken to the open courtyard and introduced to the arrangements there.

"Two huge barrels were sunk in the earth, one filled with hot, the other with cold water. There was a thin screen on two sides—not against prying eyes, but simply to keep off the wind. Indeed, as I began to take off my kimonos an interested audience of both sexes turned to watch me. This was unpleasant, and I did my best to dodge their gaze behind the screen.

"I might have saved myself the trouble. A moment later, in reply to the calls of the innkeeper and his wife, their daughter came up hastily to bathe me, as her duty was. She was not in the least embarrassed—and I soon had other things to worry me, for when, at the young lady's direction, I let myself down into the hot tub I discovered that, in the usual Japanese fashion, the heat of the water in it was not less than 115 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Up to my neck in that hot bath I suffered exquisite torture, which turned to the most exquisite agony when I stepped on the still hotter kettle lying on the bottom of the tub. The innkeeper's daughter pulled me out, red as a lobster and very nearly boiled. She dropped me, more dead than alive, into the cold tub, pulled me out again, and dried me.

"Then she bowed politely, and left me to return to my room."

Husbands Are Hoping.

Recently an Irvington woman invited a few of her friends to play cards during the afternoon. There was a strong intimation that the highest score would be rewarded with a prize. That stimulated interest to a degree.

The women had visions of the ordinary prizes given for card proficiency. One of them thought of a pretty hemmed towel, another saw visions of a cut-glass tumbler, and still another dreamed of something else. There was but one table and as the hostess was barred the contest was wholly between the remaining three. Finally the games were over and the scores tabulated. Then the hostess came in with a big glass of currant jelly and presented it as the prize of the afternoon. She picked the currants in her own garden and had made the jelly herself.

There is hope in the hearts of some Irvington husbands that the fad of giving real food as prizes will grow. Then, if their wives are good enough bridge players there may be something to eat when husbands come home in the evening.—Indianapolis News.

No Jugo-Slav Race.

There is in strictness no such thing as a Jugo-Slav. There are Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, all of whom speak the same language, with variations, and are now of the same nationality. There is a religious question among Jugo-Slavs, which has, on occasion, been stressed by the intriguing imperialist politicians on the borders who have been anxious to prevent national unity, the Serbs being of the Greek, or Orthodox church, and the Croats and Slovenes of the Roman church. There are no more than 12,000,000 of them altogether, but the territory of the new nation is larger than that of Great Britain.

Display of Ribbon.

When the war started and Gen. Peyton March, chief of staff, first appeared before the senate military committee in connection with military legislation, he wore a single ribbon on his coat, denoting his campaigns in the army. Now, together with ribbons denoting foreign decorations as well as some given him in this country, together with service bars, he has three rows of them over the left-hand pocket, and if placed in a row would measure nearly two feet.

Nothing but Trouble.

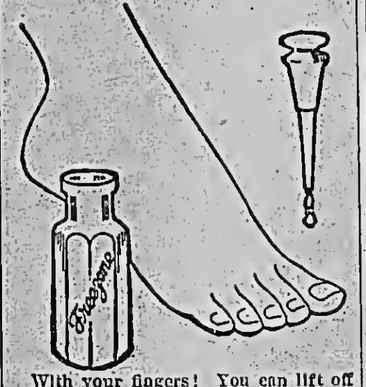

"Every have any trouble with your automobile?"

"Yes. Ever since I got it, all my wife's relatives expect me to be their chauffeur."

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!

His Idea of Bigness.

During the examinations at the close of school, the fourth-grade teacher asked her history class to name the five most important men of the recent war. One boy, in all seriousness, answered the question thus: "General Pershing, President Wilson, General Foch, my big brother Tom and Andy Sullivan's brother Pat."

The Reminiscent Fraction.

"I suppose I'm getting to be a back number," remarked Uncle Bill Bottletop sadly.

"What number?" inquired the village wag.

"I haven't thought about that. I guess it's about two and seventy-five hundredths."

Orphaned Fawn Adopts Man as Its Guardian

Williamsport, Pa. — George Hummel, a resident of Liberty, while fishing at the head of Grey's run, heard a fawn bleating in the woods up the mountain side, and upon investigation came upon a strange sight. On the ground lay a dead doe with a dead fawn by her side, while a live fawn stood guard nearby. The live animal had worn a path where it had trotted around the body of the mother. There were no bullet holes in the carcass. Mr. Hummel had some cookies in his pocket which he fed to the little fawn, and the animal followed him home, apparently content that it had found a friend. Mr. Hummel reported the case to a game protector and is caring for the fawn.

WRESTLING PARSON IN ARMY

Soldiers Thrown by Chaplain Currie of Second Division Promise to Go to Church.

With the American Forces in Germany.—Chaplain E. S. Currie of the Second division has become known among the American forces on the Rhine as "the wrestling parson" in his go-to-church campaign, which he inaugurated recently among the soldiers.

Chaplain Currie has been putting on an exhibition in Leutesdorf every night the last few weeks, and each man he throws promises to induce five other soldiers to accompany him to church the Sunday following the wrestling match.

The contests have been held in the Leutesdorf playhouse. Chaplain Currie has been taking on different men from the Third battalion of the Sixth marines each night. Reports to the chaplain's office of the Second division say that Chaplain Currie has been winning about 75 per cent of the matches.

Right Definition of a Classic.

A classic is properly a book which maintains itself by virtue of that happy coalescence of matter and style, that innate and exquisite sympathy between the thought that gives life and the form that consents to every mood and of grace and dignity, which can be simple without being vulgar, elevated without being distant, and which is something neither ancient nor modern, always new and incapable of growing old.—Lowell.

BIG HUNT IS ON FOR 'OUTLAW JOE'

State and Federal Officers Have Been After Him for a Year.

ALWAYS SLIPS AWAY

If He Cut Notch in Rifle for Every Time He Shot a Man, There Wouldn't Be Any Butt Left.

Hillsboro, N. C.,—Nobody will sleep in Hillsboro or the country around until "Outlaw Joe" Riley is caught.

"Outlaw Joe" is a moonshiner, slacker and assassin. If he cut a notch in his rifle for every time he shot a man, there wouldn't be any butt left to his gun.

For a year the state and federal officers have been after him, but he always slips away, says Sheriff Roseman of Orange county.

"I'll pay a good price to anybody who brings him in, dead or alive!"

Shoots United States Collector.

Riley is sought by Uncle Sam for moonshining and for shooting Deputy Collector T. M. Arrowsmith, a revenue officer. He is wanted by the army for refusing to register for the draft. And he is wanted by the state for several shootings and for jumping bail.

Recently he was caught making moonshine whisky. But Joe isn't one of the surrendering kind. He raised his shotgun and fired a charge full into the face of Deputy Arrowsmith. By some miracle Arrowsmith's eyes were missed, but the rest of his face is still full of small shot.

Recently Joe Riley shot through the head a companion whom he accused of having reported his moonshine still to the revenue officers. The companion recovered, and so loyal are the members of Riley's gang to their leader that he rejoined him.

Riley was arrested for this shooting after he had first jumped from the second-story window of his home when the officers came to get him, and had shot six times at Deputy Collector A. P. Cates. He was placed under bond, but he jumped it and fled to the hills.

Fired Full Into the Face of Deputy Arrowsmith.

He has a wife and children living near the village of Caldwell, N. C.

He is as famous down here in Orange county as the notorious Allen family is in the mountains of Virginia.

Riley used to come boldly to Hillsboro three or four times a week and spend his money in the general store. Once he flashed a roll of thirty-two hundred-dollar bills.

Deputy Arrowsmith, the particular enemy of Riley, is the right-hand man of Col. Vanderford, chief of the revenue raiders in the Carolina district.

He's Efficient Raider.

He has the reputation of being one of the most efficient raiders in the country. In stature and appearance he greatly resembles the ascetic, thin faced movie actor, William S. Hart—and he is just as "quick on the draw." He has an almost uncanny "nose" for stills—they say he can smell one two miles away.

Arrowsmith works practically alone, except that occasionally Sheriff Roseman of Orange county accompanies him on his raids.

His methods differ from those of the Virginia moonshine raiders in that he does his work entirely at night. With an electric flashlight to aid him, its only an excellently camouflaged distillery path in the woods that escapes him.

Twelve to Bury Giant.

London.—It required 12 men to bury Jonathan Swan, the Leyland giant. The coffin measured three feet wide, six feet nine inches long, and with the body weighed 1,102 pounds. No hearse could be secured large enough to carry the remains. The 12 men took 30 minutes to get the coffin into position in the grave.

BAIT CASTING LINES.

My Dear Buck:

Many a fish, old scout, has been lost on the first three feet of the line, not on account of the weakness of the entire line, or poor quality, but solely from the wear and fraying on the end of the bait casting line due to the friction on the guides and the pull of the bait in its start to the fish. The wear is far greater on the first few feet of the line than any other part, and to be sure of your fish, you must be sure of the strength of that basic part of your tackle, the line that lands 'em. One of the big points to remember in the care of the line is to test it every now and then and break off a foot or two when it shows weakness. The snapping of a good line can be avoided by this little precaution.

Soft Braid Versus Hard Braid.

The only line to be considered for bait casting is the braided silk, and of this kind we have the choice between the hard and soft braided. Of the former it can be said it wears well and absorbs practically no water, but as a casting line it takes a back seat to the soft braided affair. Owing to the ease with which the soft braided line slides from the reel, it makes the best possible line for casting, and you can thumb it all day without burning the thumb into the quick, which is more than you can say for the hard braided.

For general bait casting with plugs and artificials of the wobbler variety you should have a No. 5 line. Some manufacturers lettering their product make a G size which corresponds to the No. 5. For the lighter lures of the spoon, pork rind and minnow class let your selection be a No. 6 or H size.

Don't Use a Rope.

The big mistake of the beginner, as well as lots of sure-fire fishermen, old man, is to select a line that is too large and heavy. It is absolutely impossible to do accurate casting with a big, heavy, clumsy line, and at that it is entirely unnecessary. With the ordinary tackle few fishermen can put more than four or five pounds pull on the line if the rod is used properly, and if it is not the rod will "go" before the line.

I do not think it is necessary to use a line of greater test strength than 12 or 15 pounds for ordinary casting, unless, of course, your are casting for muskie, northern pike or pickerel. For general bass casting a 15-pound test line will more than fill the bill and at the same time keep your line down to a size that will make your casting far easier than with the heavier and more bulky line which piles up on your reel so quick that it fouls on the reel pillars and makes casting about as enjoyable as handling a towline on a tug.

Dry Your Line After Fishing.

One of the simplest ways to put a good line out of the game is to let it dry on the reel; do this a few times, Buck, and your line is n. g., no matter what high quality goods you started with. In drying on a reel only the top layers of the line really dry; the balance molds and rots so as to be in fine shape to break when you hook that big one. All of which points to the fact that you should reel out your line after each day's fishing, hanging it between two convenient trees and let it dry out thoroughly before putting it to bed. Don't let it lie along the ground or dry out in the sun, and with the above care you will add 100 per cent to its life.

Another way to put a good casting line on the hummer is to use it for trolling. No matter how many swivels you have on your line while trolling, it will become so twisted that casting with it will become a "world's series" of back lashes. When you think it's time to use a new line for casting, shoot the old one into the trolling department, and die happy casting the new one.

Easy to Waterproof a Line.

To avoid soaking up too much water in your casting line, which makes it heavy, you can waterproof it by saturating it in a solution of vaseline and light oil. You can apply the oil either by rubbing it into the line with a well-soaked cloth or apply it in bulk by heating the oil (not boiling) and soaking the entire line at once. If you oil the line while still on the original spool let it soak about 20 to 30 minutes; if you have the line wrapped loosely on a stick much shorter time, about ten minutes, will do the trick. In either case wipe off all the surplus oil. This will not only waterproof your line, but will make it pliant and flexible and the lubricant will reduce the friction on the guides, saving wear on the line and aid it in running smoothly and easily under the thumb.
